

Trust Your Feelings Scenarios

You are walking home from school and you see your friend picking on another kid.

Your cousin comes over and you feel uncomfortable with the way they greet you with a kiss.

You see an older kid stealing from the local store. They know that you have been watching and threaten to hurt you if you tell anyone.

You are sitting on the bus and a man next to you puts his hand on your thigh.

While you are taking the shortcut home through the alleyway, an older kid comes up to you and steals your cell phone and money. You're scared to tell what happened because you weren't supposed to take any shortcuts.

A group of people you know from school are making mean comments about you online.